All business would be knocked by high.
But we observe at Sixth and Main They're selling bread and not champagne.
At Pifth and Elm they even dare To replace drink with underwear. Where once the Admiral held sway Are clocks and watches on display. At Eighth, near State, where flowed the said, Is meat to feed the inner man; Across the street the candy store Supplants the wine shop there before. At Main, near Fifth, are "glasses" clear Supplants the wine shop there before. At Main, near Fifth, are "glasses" where once were glasses stained with heer.

At Vine, six-twenty, "stews" were found, Now tasteful oyster stews abound. At Eighth and Broadway boose expires and in his place are auto tires. At Fifth, near Race, where men oft reeled, Now they may have their "soles" all "heeled." At Fifth and Broadway a safe Stands as a grocery today. The old Fox Hall is gone for sure and inst across the avenue Confections shine instead of brew. At Vine, near Ninth, a stock of pets Succeeds the goods loved by the wets. And so we might go one, but time Will not admit another rayme— Go back a year and scan the stores Where men once staggered through the doors.

Then look again and you will see The self-same men, erect and free, Come through the same doors neally clad.

NATURE.

O Nature! I do not aspire
To be the highest in thy choir—
To be a meteor in thy sky,
Or comet that may range on high;
Only a rephyr that may blow
Among the reeds by the river low;
Give me thy most privy place
Where to run my alty race.

In some withdrawn, unpublic mead In some withorawn, unpublic me Let me sigh upon a reed, Or in the woods, with leafy din, Whisper the still evening in: Bome still work give me to do— Only—be it near to you.

For I'd rather be thy child And pupil, in the forest wild. Than be the king of men elsewhere, And most sovereign siave of care; To have one moment of thy dawn. Than share the city's year foriors.
